FROM THE DIRECTOR

Debbie Gaillette

One of the aims of our summer Arts and Sciences Camps (for twenty years now) is to have fun while keeping young brains engaged – without kids even realizing it! Without summer learning opportunities, a child will lose two or three months of reading and math skills so we work hard to present a fresh learning environment so kids can explore opportunities in the arts – to spark their interests beyond typical classroom learning.

In addition to the fun your children will have, there are practical reasons why summer camp is important – from learning self-expression to connecting with nature to discovering a new hobby to boosting academic skills learned during the school year. This is in addition to our focus on health and wellness at break time and in classes. Plus, engaging in visual arts, music, dance, theater, and hands-on projects encourages creativity, perseverance, focus, collaboration and a broader view of the world.

Our camps definitely still deserve parents' consideration and are worth the commitment because summer is the perfect time to give all disciplines of the arts a try. A camp registration form is enclosed with this newsletter, so help us fill up our camps in the month of July!

Our calendar is full this summer with incredible activities and opportunities: the Red Rose Festival and Photography Contest, LCSD Summer Reading Kick Off, Ladies Afternoon Tea, the EMK Celebration of Summer Concert, Ag+Art Kick Off and Tour, the LCCA Annual Meeting and Sponsor Appreciation event and a return engagement at the CAC by Ethan Uslan. Please see all the dates listed in our calendar or give us a call.

New Mission Statement:

Early in 2018, the LCCA Board of Directors completed a new Strategic Plan for 2018-2021, with excellent guidance by facilitator Nell Walker. One of our goals was to update and refine our current Mission Statement. This mission guides our daily work, strategic planning and defines clearly why we exist and our vision for this wonderful community:

The mission of the Lancaster County Council of the Arts is to enrich the quality of life in Lancaster County by building a vibrant community connecting arts, culture, and economic vitality through education, advocacy, and collaboration.

Looking Back...

FACES

of the Arts

Shirley Anderson Hunter, a native South Carolinian of Rock Hill was born on August 20, 1946 and moved to Lancaster, SC at the age of two. She is happily married to Michael Hunter and they have two children, Maxi and Angi Hunter. Shirley later joined the Lancaster Art League, Lancaster Music Study Club, Lancaster Shag Club, Lancaster Moose Lodge, the Lancaster High School Friends Group of 1966 and the Lancaster County Council of the Arts. Shirley, a retired Licensed Practical Nurse (LPN) and Red Cross Instructor, is also a talented artist and singer.

She attends Zion United Methodist Church, where she sings in the choir. Shirley also received an Associate in Arts degree from the University of South Carolina - Lancaster. Shirley has participated in several art workshops with great artists such as Dianne Mahaffee, Bea Sisson, Margaret Hoybok, Guy Dean and a live demonstration with worldwide artist and designer, Jim Shore. Shirley Hunter won Honorable Mention Award in the Marian Hagins Memorial Art Competition & Exhibition sponsored by the Hagins Family and LCCA. Shirley became a member of the LCCA back in the 80's and says, "It is a great organization that brightens the lives of all who are involved. It shows the joys of creating and being involved with others in making your surroundings fun!"

Shirley's favorite recipe is her famous pimento cheese. She enjoys having fun with family and friends, painting, line dancing, singing, gardening and helping others. Shirley's favorite quote "is to be true to yourself or you can't be true to anyone!" And, that God loves everyone.
